

This book emphasises that human beings cannot find their true selves independent of God and nature. The short meditations in this book take the reader to the world of light, happiness and wisdom. Adam Stanton-Wharmby, Wizz-Kidz, England.

There are biblical reflections, anecdotes, poems, prayers, reflections on art and nature in this book, through which one can feel the gentle touch of God

Manju Paul and Nithin Kunnath, NHS, England.

This book touches the core of human self and assures that no matter what situation one may be in, there is hope, healing and restoration that come from a supreme magnificent grace of God. It beautifully weaves biblical reflections and reflections of nature
Tilly Taylor, Church Ministry, England.

Whilst machines, technology and mobiles form the rhythms of human social life today, this book draws our attention to the sublime beauty of God's revelation in His Word, nature and art
Abishek Anand, Graduate Student, Electronic Communication Engineering, Salem, India

The short reflections in this book fill one's mind with hope and show a way to inward harmony amid the doubts, fear, insecurity, loneliness, conflicts and despairing cynicism that we see today
Sudhanshu Saxena, Mechanical Engineer, Bangalore, India.

Christina Manohar has a Phd (University of Gloucestershire, UK) and a Post-Doctorate (University of Wales, UK) in Christian Theology. She has authored books on theology including Spirit Christology: An Indian Christian Perspective (2009), The Knowledge of God in Mechthild of Magdeburg (2010), Women's Issues and Reflections (2012), Spirit, Time and Eternity: East-West Reflections (2015).

ISBN 9781999889104

9 781999 889104

Seasons of Thoughts

Christina Manohar

CSOT

Seasons of Thoughts

Reflections on Theology and Nature

Christina Manohar